A SUGGESTION HAS BEEN MADE TO HAVE A SPOOKY STORY TIME FOR OLDER CHILDREN (AGES 8-13).

I am seeking parental input, support and/or suggestions in regards to encouraging our children to read and/or reading to them.

PLEASE CONTACT THE LIBRARIAN TO LET ME KNOW YOUR THOUGHTS.

MY PLAN WOULD BE TO SET IT UP FOR AN EVENING EVENT THAT MAY INCLUDE A BON FIRE!

Story time is with books, either paperback books, or ones that can be downloaded to a device. Parental encouragement regarding the benefits of reading is essential to set our students on a successful path!

Caring for a wounded child

Grown men can learn from very little children for the hearts of little children are pure. Therefore, the Great Spirit may show to them many things which older people miss.

(Black Elk)

izquotes.com

Unfortunately, there are many ways that a child could be hurt and experience great suffering. There are household dysfunctions like substance abuse, parental separation/divorce, mental illness and domestic violence. There can be psychological, physical or sexual abuse. Physical and emotional neglect also has consequences. There is no age limit for someone to suffer from depression, post-traumatic stress disorder, grief or anxiety just like there is not an age limit for broken bones, cuts, etc.

Professional treatment may be recommended for some children who suffer, yet there is much that caring adults can do to assist in the healing. Let us think of "treatment" simply as how the family, extended family and village "treat" a child. The attention and environment that you provide shapes your child's brain development for life.

"Even though, as children, they seemed to have 'adjusted', there is a mysterious sleeper effect that doesn't become apparent until the child is in the stage of development that developmental psychologists call 'intimacy', usually in the early to mid-twenties." ~ Marsh Fightlin ~
