The Village Council’s Annual Meeting Port Graham Village Council held their 2016 Annual Meeting on Thursday, April 14, 2016.

There was a good turnout of community members in attendance this year. Each of the Council’s employees gave a report on what activities were provided during this past year, and what is expected for this year.

One of our regular guests who we have joined our annual meeting is NPRHA Executive Director, Olen Harris; he talked about how the housing program is running and reminded community members to fill out a weatherization application as each application is considered on a case by case basis and, if accepted, housing can make (in some cases, much needed) improvements that can dramatically change a homes fuel burning demands.

Jan Vanderpool, from Chugachmiut also came and talked about the programs and grants that Chugachmiut has that Port Graham benefits from. She explained how a few things have changed in regards to General Assistance through Chugachmiut. Jan also introduced a new Health Director, Kelley Baker. Kelly comes to our region with an extensive background in the health management field. She brings to our region a wealth of information and she’s raring to start working with the people she’s here to serve.

Three (3) council seats were open and were filled by the following returning council members:

Stella Meganack, as Member
Melinda Kamluck as Member
Tanya McMullen as a Member

Chief Patrick spoke of the continuing efforts through an ANA grant to enhance our communities traditional values with our ANA Immersion Project, Tamamta Ltnaulutla, meaning We All Learn Together. There is still many activities left for community members to participate in.

The council continues to place an encouraging emphasis on Port Graham’s Traditional Values and celebrates people young and old who are practicing these traditional values:

Saturday Camps are based on cultural events on what is in season; Last year we did trout in May and taught students how to round haul schools of trout up the bay, then how to clean and hang them.

Parent Classes is where we teach parents what is taught at the school based on curriculum.

Education Committee is the ANA staff who meets to discuss the current needs of the ANA grant.

TPR Training (TPR = Total Physical Response) is taught by Nita Rearden who has experience in this area to expand our teaching abilities to students /parents / community members.

Questions/Comments please stop by or give us a call:

Daryl is Leaving Port Graham!! :(

Daryl J. Kreun breezed into Port Graham like a williwaw five years ago and really made a mark on our little town. He first crushed it as a secretary at the school, then went on to help put together some excellent grants that totally benefit the whole village and finally, he's helped bring CAC's furthering education information to everyone qualified and or interested. You've been a GREAT asset to our little village and we thank you for all you've done. We look forward to seeing you again once you become a certified massage therapist and come back to dazzle us with your aromatherapy knowledge! Good Luck Daryl!

Here are 10 Books Every Child Must Read or be Read to Before Kindergarten... and Why

One Fish Two Fish Red Fish Blue Fish by Dr. Seuss (1960)
You can’t go wrong with any Seuss book, but the singsong verses, real and imagined beasts (like a seven-hump Wump), and simpler story line in this classic tale will have kids roaring. It’s also chock-full of “sight words” for 4- and 5-year-olds and colors for younger kids.

One Family by George Shannon and Blanca Gomez (2015)
Featuring multicultural families of many sizes, this counting book cleverly introduces the concept that “one” can mean a single item or a collection of things. A page reads, “One is eight. One box of crayons. One row of ducks. One family.”

Monsters Love School by Mike Austin (2014)
Bright colors and cheery monsters sweep kids up in the excitement of starting school. But the book also touches on children’s fears and apprehension, like when monster Blue asks, “What if I get hungry?” and “What if no one likes me?”

Where the Wild Things Are by Maurice Sendak (1963)
Wild child Max gets sent to bed without supper after threatening to eat his mom. But her next move puts this book on the list because the message of unconditional parental love—even when you misbehave—is reassuring to kids.

Where the Sidewalk Ends by Shel Silverstein (1974)
No one will appreciate these nonsensical poems more than preschoolers. One silly rhyme: “Teddy said it was a hat/ So I put it on/ Now Dad is saying/ 'Where the heck's the toilet plunger gone?'”

Dane Tashima Bully by Laura Vaccaro Seeger (2013)
This 21-word story gets to the crux of teasing and forgiveness: A bull calls a chicken, well, “Chicken!” and tells a turtle he’s a slowpoke. But when a goat retorts that the bull is a bully, he apologizes and the animals play together.

Llama Llama Time to Share by Anna Dewdney (2012)
One of most compelling stories about sharing, this book explores what happens when a llama won’t let the new neighbor girl play with his toy.

In this fun rhyming tale of A to Z climbing up and falling from the coconut tree, kids learn their letters without even realizing it. Bonus: The front and back inside covers colorfully depict the upper- and lowercase alphabet so you can work on letter recognition with your child after the story.

Don’t Let the Pigeon Stay Up Late! by Mo Willems (2006)
From “I’m not even tired!” to “Can I have a glass of water?” to “I’ll go to bed early tomorrow night instead!” the stalling tactics of a cute pigeon who claims he isn’t sleepy sound familiar. This book will help your child laugh at his own behavior—just when you need to stick to a bedtime routine the most.

Charlie and the Chocolate Factory by Roald Dahl (1964)
Chapter books aren’t just for older kids! The story of Willy Wonka’s mysterious candy-making operation will hold your child’s attention night after night and expose her to a more sophisticated plot.

Working to Preserve our Heritage and Culture

As a reminder, some of you may know, I have taken a position with Chugachmiut as a Local Education Coordinator (LEC).

Each of the 7 communities in our region have an LEC and we will be working together to revise and develop sets of curricula that can be used in the schools to educate students about our heritage and culture. Along with the curricula, we are also working on expanding on 10 Heritage Kits. These kits are used in conjunction with the curricula and can also be used as exhibits in the museum, schools, and even the council office.

Since we want to include as much Tradition Knowledge as possible, I will be asking for help along the way. I will be developing a Cultural Advisory Committee that will include Elders, teachers, parents and community members that have the knowledge needed to make culturally relevant kits and curricula.

The kit I am currently working on is "Pisurtut—They are Hunting". I am looking at the current set of curriculum activities and making sure they include Sugt’stun vocabulary and appropriate activities to teach students about traditional hunting techniques. Do you have any great stories, pictures or legends that would help me develop this kit? I would love the opportunity to sit down with you and learn more about our past!

Of these two young men, Which is the best prepared hunter, and why?

Resilience

“Resilience is the ability to recover from difficulties or change – to function as well as before and move forward. Many refer to this as “bouncing back” from challenges.” In fact resilience comes from the Latin work ‘resalire’ which mean ‘springing back’. The really good news is that resilience can be learned even at a very young age.

Many of our children have suffered physical, sexual, or emotional abuse. More of our children have experienced emotional or physical neglect. Household and family dysfunctions that negatively impact the children are too common. These dysfunctions include substance abuse, divorce, mental illness, domestic violence and having incarcerated family members. Living at or below the poverty level is associated with higher prevalence of risk factors to emotional health & well-being& diminished protective factors. As the number of traumatic or adverse childhood experiences increases, so do the risk of disease, victimization, un-healthy behaviors, impairment, and premature death.

Developing Resiliency . . .

Make connections. Good relationships with family and friends are very important. Being active in school, community, and church to develop support systems that are good for everyone. Learning to give and receive help.

Avoid seeing crises as insurmountable problems. You can’t change the fact that highly stressful events happen, but you can change how you interpret and respond to these events. Try looking beyond the present to how future circumstances may be a little better. Note any subtle ways in which you might already feel somewhat better as you deal with difficult situations.

Move toward your goals. Develop some realistic goals. Do something regularly — even if it seems like a small accomplishment — that enables you to move toward your goals. Instead of focusing on tasks that seem unachievable, ask yourself, "What's one thing I know I can accomplish today that helps me move in the direction I want to go?"

Take decisive actions. Act on adverse situations as much as you can. Take decisive actions, rather than detaching completely from problems and stresses and wishing they would just go away.

Nurture a positive view of yourself. Developing confidence in your ability to solve problems and trusting your instincts helps build resilience.

Accept that change is a part of living. Certain goals may no longer be attainable as a result of adverse situations. Accepting circumstances that cannot be changed can help you focus on circumstances that you can alter.

Look for opportunities for self-discovery. People often learn something about themselves and may find that they have grown in some respect as a result of their struggle with loss. Many people who have experienced tragedies and hardship have reported better relationships, greater sense of strength even while feeling vulnerable, increased sense of self-worth, a more developed spirituality and heightened appreciation for life.

Maintain a hopeful outlook. An optimistic outlook enables you to expect that good things will happen in your life. Try visualizing what you want, rather than worrying about what you fear.

Take care of yourself. Pay attention to your own needs and feelings. Engage in activities that you enjoy and find relaxing. Exercise regularly. Taking care of yourself helps to keep your mind and body primed to deal with situations that require resilience.

“Accept that change is a part of living. Certain goals may no longer be attainable as a result of adverse situations. Accepting circumstances that cannot be changed can help you focus on circumstances that you can alter.”

“I am not what happened to me, I am what I choose to become.”
~Carl Gustav Jung~

“The most beautiful people we have known are those who have known defeat, known suffering, known struggle, known loss, and have found their way out of the depths. These persons have an appreciation, a sensitivity, and an understanding of life that fills them with compassion, gentleness, and a deep loving concern. Beautiful people do not just happen.”
